Relics of the Age of Darkness

A Book of the Unification Supplement

Version 1.0

Relics of the Age of Darkness

An optional supplement for The Book of the Unification. It lets 6th and 7th Edition Imperium and Chaos armies field units from the Horus Heresy 1st Edition army lists, the wargear of an older age brought out of the vaults ten thousand years later.

This document follows the same approach as the Unification itself: the 5th Edition core rules are the baseline, and anything from another game is changed only as far as it must be to fit.

Why an Add-on?

The Horus Heresy 1st Edition was written alongside 6th and 7th Edition Warhammer 40,000 and uses the same core rules, profiles and vehicle rules as the codexes of that era. Its units therefore fit the Unification with few changes, unlike the later Heresy editions, which are games of their own.

Optional by Design

Nothing in this supplement is on by default. Both players should agree before Heresy units are used, in the same way the Unification treats super-heavy vehicles in smaller games.

Using This Supplement

- Choose a 6th or 7th Edition Army List for an Imperium or Chaos faction that receives Heresy units (see Successor Factions).
- In New Recruit, tick Configuration → Relics of the Age of Darkness → Use Horus Heresy 1st Edition units. The option only appears for 6th and 7th Edition lists.
- Heresy units appear in the normal sections of the army, marked (Heresy) in the same way Forge World and Imperial Armour units are marked (FW) and (IA).
- Build the army on the standard Force Organization Chart of the 5th Edition rulebook (p. 87), exactly as for any other list.

Design Philosophy

Heresy units are brought across as printed in their army list, with three kinds of change only: what the Unification already changes for every 6th and 7th Edition codex; what belongs to Heresy army construction and has no meaning on the 5th Edition chart; and one ruling, Relics of the Age of Darkness, that replaces the Heresy Legion traits. Everything else – profiles, wargear, options and points – is unchanged.

Introduction

"The Legions that broke the galaxy did not vanish. Their arms were hung in reliquaries, their engines entombed beneath forge-cathedrals, waiting."

From a remembrancer's fragment, unattributed

Army Construction

Heresy units join an army; they never form one. The army is built from its own 6th or 7th Edition Army List on the 5th Edition chart, and the rules below decide which Heresy units it may add.

The Force Organization Chart

Heresy units use the standard 5th Edition Force Organization Chart only, taking the slot shown for them in their army list. The Heresy Crusade chart, its compulsory choices and its alternative charts (Zone Mortalis, Strategic Raid, Onslaught, Leviathan and Castellan) are not used. Units keep any slot change granted by their own options, such as a Primus Nullificator Consul allowing Nullificators to be taken as Troops.

No Rites of War

Rites of War are detachment rules and are treated as Command Benefits (Unification, p. 9): they are not used. Units and options that exist only through a Rite of War cannot be taken; for example, a Master of Armour requires the Armoured Breakthrough Rite.

No Named Characters or Primarchs

Heresy special characters and Primarchs are not available. A Legion's generic leaders (Praetors, Centurions and their Consul upgrades) are.

Successor Factions

Units of a single Legion are offered only to that Legion's successor:

- Dark Angels, Blood Angels and Space Wolves: their own Legion.
- Space Marines: Ultramarines, Imperial Fists, White Scars, Iron Hands, Salamanders and Raven Guard.
- Chaos Space Marines: the nine Traitor Legions.
- Generic Legion units are offered to all five. Blackshields have no successor and are not used.

In Dark Angels, Blood Angels and Space Wolves armies every Heresy unit may take that Legion's options. In Space Marines and Chaos Space Marines armies a Legion's own units take that Legion's options; generic units take none.

Bodyguards

Command Squads and Legion retinues (Invictarus Suzerains, Huscarls, the Dark Sons of Death, Deathwing Companions and the like) do not use a Force Organization slot. Each such unit may be taken once for every model in the army with the Master of the Legion special rule: a Legion Praetor, a Praetor Tribune, or a Centurion upgraded to a Herald or Delegatus Consul.

Warlords

No Warlord Traits are used (Unification, p. 10). A Heresy model may still be named the army's Warlord for missions that score Slay the Warlord; the army has one Warlord in total.

Relics of the Age of Darkness

Heresy armies choose a Legion and gain its traits. That choice does not exist in a 6th or 7th Edition army, so every Heresy unit instead has the following special rule:

Relics of the Age of Darkness

This unit counts as having the army-wide special rules that the units of its Army List have (for example Chapter Tactics or And They Shall Know No Fear), and is affected by that list's army-wide rules as if it were a unit from that list. It does not gain Legion traits from the Horus Heresy army lists.

Units keep all of their own special rules, including Legiones Astartes. Options that would give a unit a Legion's traits (for example Legion Inductees for a Praevian's battle-automata) are not used.
This rule is a Middlehammer ruling, not printed text.

Rulings

"What was forbidden then is merely obsolete now. Obsolete is not the same as forgotten."

Cross-Edition Compatibility

Heresy army lists are 7th Edition publications. Everything the Unification says about 6th and 7th Edition codexes (pp. 9–10) applies to them in full. The points below are the ones that touch Heresy units most often.

No Hull Points

Heresy vehicles have no Hull Points. A rule that removes a Hull Point instead inflicts a Glancing Hit at AP – (Unification, p. 9).

Super-Heavy Structure Points

Super-heavy vehicles have Structure Points equal to one third of their Hull Points, rounded to the nearest whole number (Unification, p. 10). The values are given in the table below and in New Recruit.

Lords of War

Lords of War that are super-heavies are taken as the army's super-heavy without using a slot; any other Lord of War is a Heavy Support choice (Unification, p. 10). Super-heavies are not used at 1,500 points or less unless both players agree (p. 8).

Melee Weapon AP

AP 1–3 melee weapons are power weapons, AP 4 reduces armour saves by 1, and AP 5, 6 and – are ignored (Unification, p. 10).

D-Strength Weapons

Destroyer weapons, such as the volcano cannon of the Falchion, use the Unification's D-Strength rule (p. 10).

Psykers

Legion psykers choose their powers from the Unification's discipline tables and may cast Mastery Level – 1 powers per turn, minimum 1 (p. 10). There is no Warp Charge (p. 9).

Reactions to the Enemy

There is no Overwatch, no Snap Shots and no Challenges (Unification, p. 9). Heresy rules that refer to them work as the Unification describes.

Amendments

"It was built to fight a war that ended before the Imperium had a name. It fights this one well enough."

The "Patched Out" List

Content in the Heresy army lists that is not used, and why. As in the Unification, the aim is to keep this list short.

Heresy Army Construction

The Crusade Force Organization Chart and its compulsory choices, alternative charts, Allied Detachments, Rites of War, Master of the Legion's Rite of War choice and one-per-1,000-points limit, Legion and allegiance choices, and army themes such as the Shattered Legions and the Armies of Dark Compliance.

Legion Traits

Replaced by the Relics of the Age of Darkness special rule.

Named Characters and Primarchs

Not available.

Fortifications

Not used, as for 7th Edition lists.

Unofficial Material

Fan-made lists sometimes found alongside the Heresy data (Necron, Asuryani and the Mournival units) are not used, nor is the Varangian Heresy Legions list, whose source could not be confirmed.

Patched Out

"Some doors in the archive are sealed for good reason. Others were sealed by people who simply never wrote the reason down."

Inscription, Vault Seventeen

Legiones Astartes

The Heresy units each faction may add. Points, profiles and wargear are given in New Recruit. "Legion" units are generic; units listed against a Legion belong to it alone.

All Five Factions

Known Limits

What this supplement does not do, or does not yet do.

- Only the Legiones Astartes army list is included so far. Mechanicum, Questoris Knights, Solar Auxilia, Imperialis Militia, the Talons of the Emperor, the Daemons of the Ruinstorm and the Agents of the Emperor are planned.
- The number of super-heavies is not limited by New Recruit; players should take one per detachment (Unification, p. 10), as with any other list.
- Several Heresy vehicles also exist as Forge World units in 40k lists. Both versions are offered.
- Points, options and unit availability come from community data for the Heresy army lists and have not been checked against the printed books.
- A Heresy Warlord and the army list's own Warlord option are separate in New Recruit; choose one.
